From the MSO's Bernard Heinze youth concerts of the 1940's, to our present-day Education Week and Proms performances, the Melbourne Town Hall has earned a special place in the Orchestra's history and among the hearts of music-loving Melburnians. This year, the iconic building will set the scene for the MSO's annual Symphony Banquet, which, for the first time in recent history, will feature the entire Orchestra.

Boston Pops Conductor Keith Lockhart, who represents both showmanship and virtuosity, will be the Orchestra's band leader on the night, and will be joined on stage by compère extraordinaire, Trevor Ashley, one of Australia's most sought-after and successful performers (with an uncanny resemblance to Shirley Bassey).

With a specially crafted menu by high profile chef Teage Ezard, matched with delectable wines from Mount Langi Ghiran and Yering Station, this glamorous black-tie party promises to be a celebration of the senses.

The Symphony Banquet is an integral part of the MSO's annual fundraising program, with all proceeds directed to our Orchestra and Education programs. I do hope you can join us.
